TRYING TO MAKE SENSE OF WOMEN WHO LOVE

THE NIGHT I GOT OUT OF PRISON, some friends took me to a hipster-thrugged Portland bar for dinner. After having spent more than two years alongside violently muscular convicts, the first thing I noticed in this smoky little tavern was how pathetically inadequate all the males looked: slump-shouldered, brown-sweater-wearing, bespectacled alterna-ferrets with tousled hair and not a whisper of Butch about them. It was as if the ladies—all of whom seemed strong and confident by comparison—had siphoned all the testosterone from the boys like sipping banana daiquiris with a straw.

Let's be succinct and say my crime involved a woman who tried to break my spirit but could not. More specifically, my crime may be fairly depicted as particularly hostile to all women, since they all seem to take these sort of things personally: I had hit my girlfriend back. I hit her back hard. My crime had been widely publicized in the area, as well as my unflinching stance that I felt not a droplet of remorse. When anyone, male or female, systematically tries to destroy you, I see nothing wrong with punching them in the face—especially when they punched you first.

When I was ejected from the prison gates like an overdue abortion, I wondered whether I'd ever get laid again. What I'm about to tell you will sound like hollow, delusional bravado to the phalanxes of pussy-flogged limp-dicks and eternally PMSing rat-snatches who clog our freeways and supermarkets, but a few wise souls out there will sense I'm speaking the truth: I NEVER GOT SO MUCH PUSSY IN MY LIFE. And every one of the women attached to those pussies was aware of my crime. I was thirty-seven when I went to prison. In the meager six years since being sprung loose, I've had at least FOUR TIMES as many women than I did in my ENTIRE LIFE before incarceration. Removing my first eighteen virginal years from the equation, I've been sampling new gash at a rate nearly THIRTEEN TIMES the pace I'd set before I was arrested. If, just for fun, you were to include my early life, the rate skyrockets to 2200%. It's as if I'm a member of KISS on tour.

At more than twice the age of what's presumably my sexual peak, I'm more appealing to women than ever. My newfound pheromonal pull was surprising and a bit disturbing: The worse my public image, the more pussy I got.

On the face of it, this makes no sense. I am known, perhaps primarily, as a misogynist. In a sensible world that doesn't spin backwards on an upside-down axis, most women should have fled from me. Quite the contrary, oh, my little sponge cake: The girls, as Flavor-Flav once said, were "on my jock like ants on candy." I certainly wasn't young, so I must infer that the reasons for this startling turnabout are psychological. I will speculate about why this is. I may be entirely wrong, but speculate I must. Unlike most women I've met, I'll allow the possibility that I'm wrong.

MORE THAN TWENTY YEARS AGO as I was earning an ultimately worthless journalism degree, I'd been dating a girl who was a distant cousin of William Shatner's, and, unfortunately, she looked a bit like him. I was a young, dumb, predictably liberal college boy who had tried my best to be a sensitive—dare I say it, feminist—male. But despite my attempts to please, appease, wheedle, and cajole this less-than-fair maiden, she grew bitchier with me at every turn.

Upon graduation, we embarked upon what was supposed to be a six-week European vacation, but our ceaseless bickering led to a split-up only three days into the trip. In that bygone era before cell phones and the Internet, she was somehow able to track me down at a youth hostel in Berlin three weeks later. Annoyed to the point where I decided not to be a nice boy anymore, I acted like a dick to her over the first day of our reunion. To my surprise, the meaner I behaved, the nicer she became. The less I acted as if I needed her, the more she seemed to need me. By that point our union had run its course, but as I left alone on a train headed for London, I'll always remember the look of loss and abandonment on her face as she stood on the platform and realized she'd bitched me out of her life.

I kept that lesson in my pocket and have whipped it out when needed—which was often—ever since. It was not a principle I wanted to be true, but it works with almost scientific precision. I wish the world operated along some half-baked principle of fairness—when you're nice to people, they're nice to you.

Reciprocity is a wonderful concept, but it's only applicable in a severe minority of cases.

Everyone else is busy playing hunter and hunted. Against my better wishes, I discovered that romantic relationships are like a balloon in that one side swells up when the other gets squeezed. From then on, I decided not to get squeezed.

That is not a popular stance for men these days, although, as noted, it works wonders. These idiot guys who make googly eyes at women and fall all over themselves trying to make them happy are the same ones who will never make them happy. On a deep, immutable level, many women realize how nonsensical their gender can be. Women disdain men who worship them because they realize how acutely silly that is. In world history, has a woman ever lubricated after being called a goddess? I doubt it, but I'll bet you a few ladies have lathered after being told to shut the fuck up. Submissiveness is not sexually appealing in anyone regardless of their gender, but I must say it wears better on women.

And yet, desperate for pussy and horrified of being called bad names, most men will eat shit until their guts burst. Throughout my life, I've observed that female partners in marital or otherwise long-term unions tend to view it as their birthright to degrade, harass, and insult their men in ways which would automatically bring out the Abuse Police if a man were acting that way.

For all we hear about evil, "controlling" men, my lifelong observation has been that it's the ladies who seek to control and dictate their partners' actions, while the guys bumblingly seek to appease them, or at least get out of their way.

Around the time of my horrible, horrible divorce, wifey-poo kept mentioning some study that had just been released claiming that the relationships which lasted were those in which the men obeyed the women. But although I've sampled dozens and dozens of vaginas in my life, I never found one which was so enchanting that I desired to act like an obsequious slave-boy around it.

How you guys put up with their endless whining and teardrops and hypocrisy and recriminations is beyond my ability to grasp. Who the fuck wants to hear her cackle and squawk forever? Not I—nay, not I. The joke is sadly true:

Men die younger than women because they want to.

Granted, there exist rare relationships where both partners seem mutually respectful. But I don't believe these constitute anywhere near a majority. As in most human interactions, it's a power struggle, and the men generally seem to concede power to the women. But riddle me this: How many wives seem genuinely hot for their husbands? Not many, right? They insist on taming their partner, but once this is accomplished, they resent them for it. Once the pretty male butterfly is trapped under glass, he loses his beauty.

Women speak with forked tongue about what they want. The hole in their mouth says one thing, while the one between their legs says quite another. They may want a good boy for money and protection, but they want a bad boy to fuck them. I'd never say that women want men to beat or murder them, but many of them seem to find the potential highly arousing. They at least want to know there's a little bit of animal left in you—a lot of animal, even better.

When nature designed genitals, it was clear which gender was supposed to be the active partner and which the passive—which one was supposed to do the fucking and which was supposed to get fucked. It's solid vs. liquid. Hard cock/wet pussy. Plug and socket. All the misguided human-sexuality classes in the world won't alter this basic evolutionary fact. When that rare man strolls by in lockstep with nature, the women flock to him.

So although I've adopted a hardass stance for most of my adult life, getting out of prison seemed to be the icing on the cock.

Here, as Travis Bickle said, was a man who would take no more. And in response, the women took numbers and stood in line.

Poor deluded dolls—they all think they're the ones who will change me. I'm a "challenge" for them. No matter how honest and explicit I am about my intentions, I've never found a woman who doesn't feel she has the Lucky Charms that will make her mine forever. So it's an inherently unstable game I play. Once they realize they may never capture their prey, they get nasty. That's when I leave.

I am lucky to live in a time when vaginas are in ample supply. There is no

Vagina Famine. There are more holes out there to fill than you could possibly conceive. You could start counting right now from the number one and keep counting your entire life, and you'd drop dead before you put a dent in three billion. Genitals are replaceable, but you'll find it's nigh impossible to replace your dignity once you've given it away so cheaply.

I tote around a set of balls that, if swung properly, could demolish buildings. I shave my balls just so you can see how big they are. In the war between the sexes, most men surrender without a fight. But I won't be taken alive. They might kill me, but until that point, they'll never tame me. I'll give them all the inches I have, but otherwise, I won't give an inch. I'll stick it to them hard and good and long, but I won't stick with them. Their one and only prayer is that someday I'll care, but I won't. And that's why they want me.

"Nothing but the naked truth"

December 2006

Happy Holidays, Portland. All of us "proverts" here at Exotic magazine would like to take this time to wish every one of you everything you desire stuffed in your stockings and wrapped up under your trees. But we know that's physically impossible now, isn't it? Actually, you know god-damned well that a lot of you deserve nothing more than a lump of coal and a kick in the ass. But here in our own version of Sin City, being "nice" gets you nowhere; it's all about the naughty. And that seems to be something we do quite well here. So forget about caroling on Xmas Eve and visions of sug-arplums dancing in your head. We all know what you'd prefer to have dancing in (or should I say "on") your head. And of course, living in Portland means you don't have to look very far to find exactly that.

To start it off, the ULTIMATE event to celebrate this sinful season, Sunday, Dec. 17th, is at the all-new Myst, as Exotic magazine presents "xXx-mas" featuring Exotic Cover Girls, go-go dancers, sexy guest performers, DJs/Dancing, and the highflying sexy burlesque troupe, Aerialistas. Visit www.myspace.com/xmag for invites, or take your chances and pay $10 at the door without.

AERIALISTAS

IN THE CLUBS

Aces High has a butt-rock paradise in store for you this month as Indigo Spirits and Wild Child Magazine present LA Guns (the original lineup, even) with The Bullet Boys and Appetite for Deception @ 9:30 pm on Thursday, Dec. 17th. In addition, Aces is now serving Hawaiian-style dining courtesy of Noho's Hawaiian Café, plus a free table dance (with coupon) on Fridays and Saturdays.

Cabaret I and II will be ringing in the new at their 2007 New Year's Party @ both clubs, featuring giveaways and extravagant theme shows. Have no fear, they'll be open until 9pm on Xmas Eve and open @ 6pm on Xmas day. Stop by the all-new Carnaval and pay a visit to the house slave appearing at their Festival of Flesh. And over at The Dancin' Bare, saddle up for the "Ride to the Run" @ 9am on Saturday, Dec. 2nd, plus a Christmas Party on Sunday, Dec. 24th, and they'll wrap up the festivities with their "Strip in the New Year Party" on Sunday, Dec. 31st.

The Dream On Saloon keeps it real with a daily Happy Hour at 6pm-9pm featuring all draft pints (including micros) for $2. And you can check out their Christmas Bash on Saturday, Dec. 16th. Monday nights are Ladies'

Nights, (actually, seems like EVERY night is ladies' night in a strip club, doesn't it?), and for all you good ol' boys and girls, Cowboy Thursdays are back!

DV8 will be holding their Amateur Night Thurs., Dec. 7th, plus a "Badder Santa Party" on Sat., Dec. 16th, and if that's not enough for you, check out the "Winter Solstice Party and Pole Contest" on Thurs., Dec. 21st. Over at Tommy's III, drop on by for their Christmas Party on Saturday, Dec. 23rd, with a free Ham and Turkey Buffet, prize giveaways, and extra-special XXXmas surprises.

Never to be outdone is Exotica, as they host their "Winter Freeze Party" on Saturday, Dec. 9th @ 9pm. This event will feature a Patron Ice Luge, stage performances, TATTOO Snowboard Giveaway, a chance to win all-day lift passes, complimentary food, and more prize giveaways all night long!

Head on over to check out the all-new Hawthorne Strip (Formerly Dino's Inn) featuring full bar, daily specials, and football on the big screen. The Pallas is now open @ 3pm Weds. through Sun. and @ 11:30am Thurs. through Sat., with free lunch on Thursday and Friday. Soobie's also has you covered for the nooner action with lunch specials @ noon including $2.99 bento, 1/2 lb. burgers and wings, and domestic draft specials.

Whether it's the Winter Solstice, Chanukah, Kwanzaa, Christmas, or New Year's, you can celebrate every holiday at Jody's Bar & Grill. Don't miss their Triple Threat Wednesdays or Sundays with mini 9-ball, 8-ball, and 9-ball tournaments w/cash prizes plus a Taco Bar every Thursday starting @ 11am.

Heading south for the winter? Be sure to stop into the Last Chance Saloon in Gervais just north of Salem and be sure not to miss the Biggest New Year's Eve Party in Oregon at Stars Salem, now taking reservations for singles and couples. Bob's Adult Books is now expanding with Romeo's VIP Club, a new juice bar right upstairs featuring the finest ladies in the valley. 18 & up, $10 cover, and the ladies always get in free.

ELSEWHERE

503girls.com is now hiring nude models and webcam performers. Dancers looking for a change can check out what the Great White North has to offer at Crazy Horse Dancers. And if any dancers are looking for a new ride, they should look up Austin's Autos, where they offer special financing packages just for entertainers.

For special holiday gift ideas, B. A. Video has all-new bestiality DVDs straight from the Netherlands just in time for Christmas. (Yeah, I know that as soon as I finish trimming the tree, I like to cozy up in front of an open fire and pop in some bestiality flick—it just wouldn't seem like Christmas without it!)

And you can now decorate your own flesh at Exotic Nights Books, where they feature the best body jewelry prices in town! Looking to find someone to poke some holes in ya to put that jewelry? Stop by Straight To The Point Body Piercing. And for the gift that leaves you tingling, pick yourself up the InnerVibe sensual vibrating ring with special pricing for the ladies.

That's it, my friends. Enjoy your holiday, stay safe, and remember, the liver is evil and must be punished, so don't drive...DRINK!

Is it just me, or do you also feel as if this year just flew by faster than a stripper getting up after a fall? Even though it went quickly, it was still quite an eventful year for me, and in this month's column I will share with you some of my true occurrences of 2006. I really need to finish the book I'm writing because it's so hard to squeeze a lot of my experiences into one column each month. I can't believe some of the things I've actually seen with my own two eyes. To everyone out there that reads my articles, thanks for the love, and I look forward to bringin' y'all another year of "Whatz Crackin'" in 2007. Big ups to all my sponsors and the beautiful Honeys I've featured this year. Speaking of which, make sure to check out my December Honey! All right, let's go...

by j.mack

ICE CUBE

First Up... "The Good, The Bad, and The Funny"

It took me a while to narrow down the list of my most memorable moments of 2006, but I finally managed to come up with my three favorites.

"The Good"—Out of all the shows and concerts that came to town this year, the one that sticks out in my mind the most was Ice Cube at the Roseland! Reason being is that first of all, Cube hadn't done a show in Portland for a grip, and many people were anxiously awaiting this concert. It was a trip, because there were almost as many police outside the concert as there were people inside. They were in patrol cars, on foot, and even on horses that night. You would have thought at first glimpse that all hell was about to break out! When Ice Cube addressed it onstage, it was felt by every single person in the building. He had everyone hold up a peace sign and show that contrary to what the cops were thinking, this was a cool-ass multi-ethnic concert with no drama! People came in peace, enjoyed the show, and left in peace. Cube later went and got some lap dances... it was all "Good"!

"The Bad"—It was the most terrible thing for a black man such as myself to ever have to witness. The police truly went overboard after tackling a downtown club patron who happened to be black. There had to have been six of them on this cat, holding him down and smashing his face into the concrete. Not only that, when they got him to the ground, his pants and drawers came down as well. After countless times of hitting him, one of the cops started Taser-ing him on his bare ass in front of many people who were yelling at them to stop! This went on for at least ten minutes. I couldn't believe I was looking at some real-life Rodney King type of shit happening right in front of me. This type of behavior these officers displayed was not only barbaric and racially motivated, but it seriously tarnishes the badges of every good officer in uniform! As a whole, the Portland

Police Department will never get the respect that it seeks if these types of incidents continue to occur. When I was a kid, cops used to hand out Trailblazer Basketball cards to us, and now they're handing out ass-whoopings! That's "Bad!"

"The Funny"—For the most part I get a lot of love in the town and I show it as well, but there are still cats that want to drop salt and hate on me. I always take it in stride and address it if I have to. On one occasion, a person who I thought I was cool with was badmouthing me to one of my lady friends. This occurred five minutes after he had shaken my hand and gave me props. Wow, huh? So the same cat happens to be at a local nightclub that following weekend. The club was on and crackin', and me and my peeps saw the hater trying to mack on this chick. At least we thought it was a chick, and apparently so did he. After further review, my homegirl informed me that old boy was talking to a transvestite. It was like watching a preview to a Jerry Springer show: "I Didn't Know That My Girl Was A Boy." He was really trying to show her off like he had the hottest chick in the club. They were holding hands and everything. I couldn't stop laughing! My partner said "Jay, don't you know him? You should tell him she's a man!" I still couldn't stop laughing! This is some crazy shit! After the club let out, we spotted the lovebirds walking through the parking lot. I yelled out, "Don't do it!" He yelled back, "Don't hate!" How funny is that?

Next Up... "The Return of The Honey of the Month Contest"

Beginning in January 2007, I will again be hosting my Honey of the Month Contests at various clubs around town. I am currently in negotiations with places that want me to bring it. This will give all local ladies a chance to be featured in my column and receive the props that they deserve. Make sure to pick up next month's magazine to see where the contest is going to be held.

Honey of the Month

This month's winner is the sexy and highly intelligent Tiara. This Honey is not only beautiful, but she is also a computer whiz. Congratulations for being my final Honey of 2006!

Big Ups to my sponsors: 503girls.com and Ken Keck Tattoos.

For more info or to contact me, hit up whatzcrackin.com.

Until next month, keep it Crackin' and enjoy the holidays!

NECROPHILIA

THE LOVE THAT CANNOT SPEAK ITS NAME (ESPECIALLY IF YOU'RE THE DEAD ONE)

"Every man to his own tastes. Mine is to corpses."

—French necrophile Henri Blot, quoted during a court hearing

"I enjoy the cold sensation against the warmth of my own flesh....I've always been physically repulsed by the heat of another living body."

—Female necrophile Leilah Wendell

WHY WOULD ANYONE FUCK A CORPSE? Exactly how bored and lonely are you? You can't go on Myspace? There aren't any singles dances where you live? You can't go to charm school or have your teeth fixed? Can anyone possibly be THAT hard-up?

I smelled a dead body once, and I didn't exactly get a boner. I can't (and WON'T) quite put my finger on it, but for me, people lose a certain luster when they're dead. Dead people really let their looks go. For me, the Choir Invisible doesn't hold quite the same appeal as, say, the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders.

This is sick fucking shit. Some fucked-up, sickening shit. Some sickeningly, fucked-up-edly, shitty fucking shit. I can see the appeal of nearly all perversions and kinks, but this one I don't get. Not at all. It's not only gross, it's yucky. And not only yucky—it's disgusting.

What could possibly be more disgusting? Slurping diarrhea with a straw? Prenatal baby-rape?

I'd rather poop into my own mouth than fuck a corpse. Here are some other things I'd rather do than fuck a corpse:

- Have one testicle removed with ice tongs and no anesthesia.
- Play Russian roulette with a semi-automatic.
- Be head-butted in the balls by a dwarf.
- Drink used-tampon tea.
- Eat dog shit (as long as it's from one of the Toy breeds).
- Eat afterbirth.
- Eat pussy.

So don't go getting the wrong idea. This is NOT an endorsement. I'm offended that you would even think that.

REFERENCES TO NECROPHILIA ABOUND in pop culture, but I fucking hate pop culture—it's been proven to cause retardation—so I won't mention any of those. You wanna go fry the dozen brain cells you have left by watching some more of those faggy Goth monster movies? I won't get in your way.

Although disgusting (did I mention that it was yucky?), necrophilia has been with us as long as there have been dead bodies. In ancient Egypt, according to the Greek historian Herodotus, noble families would wait three or four days before turning a recently deceased family member—especially if the bitch was a hottie—over to embalmers. "These precautions are taken," Herodotus wrote, "because it is feared the embalmers will violate the corpse." Primitive cultures, most of whom we've blessedly annihilated, tended to be fond of rubbing their genitals up against skulls and jacking off with human bones. They thought it was a way of communing with dead souls and/or absorbing their sexual energy. Such cultures were very, very stupid, which is why I said it's a blessing that we slaughtered them.

TRUE NECROPHILIA—as opposed to the club kids who slap on corpse paint and black eyeliner—is apparently so rare that there exists scant medical literature on the topic. The most comprehensive report appears to be a 1989 paper released by Dr. Jonathan Rosman and Dr. Phillip Resnick that covers 122 case studies. They concluded that nine in ten necrophiles were male, and, of course, almost always white. Four out of five were heteros. Seven out of ten had above-average intelligence. Half exhibited no discernible personality disorders, with a meager 11% being deemed psychotic. They FUCK DEAD PEOPLE, for Christ's sake. What exactly does one have to do these days to be classified as psychotic?

Rosman and Resnick (I think they might be Jews) wrote that necrophiles view their prey as spiritually pure and incapable of rejecting them—or of even resisting them. They tend to suffer from abysmally low self-esteem (DUH!) and are usually terrified of being spurned by women. They often turn an overwhelming fear of death into a desire for it. They are invariably control freaks, and people are much easier to control once they stop breathing.

Unsurprisingly, nearly three-fifths of the subjects in their study were employed at places which provided them with easy access to dead bodies.

DAN (NOT HIS REAL NAME, DUMMY) is in his late forties and toiled for fifteen years as an embalmer in central California. He estimates that in the year 2000 alone, he embalmed a thousand bodies. Dan was eventually fired for refusing to sign a contract agreeing never to talk with the press if he were to witness an act of necrophilia at his mortuary.

Dan says he finds necrophiles loathsome, but he also condemns the death industry's unwillingness to acknowledge that there's a problem. He recalls a mortuary meat-wagon driver named Mike, whom he describes as 6'4", 350 pounds, and "pear-shaped." He says Mike "doesn't doesn't have a mental editor—he's the type of guy who'll look in your eyes and say, 'I'd really like to fuck your daughter.'"

"There was an [car] accident case, a girl of fourteen years who was pretty bad—a lot of stitching and a lot of work to get her ready for an open-casket funeral," Dan says. "So Mike comes in and he's gawking for a while, and finally he says, "Nice!" And at first, I thought he was talking about my work. So he said, "No, I'd DO her, man!" And I said, "Get the fuck out of here." I found out later that Mike would touch the vaginas of dead women. I told my bosses, but they didn't want word to get out—they felt that by ignoring it, it wouldn't exist."

"A few weeks after that, somebody went into the Cold Room, and Mike had his pants down, but he pulled them right up. It was a seventy-year-old woman in there. We went to the main boss about it. He finally called everyone in, and Mike was gone. We found out through sources that Mike had been given two years' pay to leave and shut his mouth. They made him sign a pledge not to ever go to the media about it. They tried to make me sign it, too. I refused to sign it, and I was let go, too. The follow-up is that one of the fired guys showed up one day and told me that Mike had a little 'accident.' My friend had beaten him down with a beer bottle."

AND YET, GOD BLESS AMERICA, there exist small, smelly, revolutionary pockets out there where a freedom-loving attitude of "Die and Let Live" reigns supreme...where the "struggle" to "pork the bones" is cloaked in PC catchphrases such as "alternative lifestyle"...where living people commune with other living people about their attraction to dead people...where severely fucked-up humans strain with every fiber of their still-living flesh to convince the world (and themselves) that they aren't severely fucked-up.

"It is the grandest wish, that our necrophilic sensuality will one day be freely expressed and practiced, without fear of legal consequences, social ostracism or persecution from haughty, false moralists!" bellows a haughtily moralistic scribe who calls himself "MichiganGhoul" on a website dubbed "The NecroErotic—Necrophilia Online." He lists several "Necrophilic Principles" which read like a corpse-fucker's Bill of Rights. Among these are the God-given "right to engage in [our] orgasmic release of choice as do 'normal' couples." Anyone who opposes—or even questions—such orgasmic release is labeled a "necrophobe." On the flip side, he boldly asserts that cadavers have absolutely no rights whatsoever. The webmaster also features a proud pantheon of necrophilic pioneers as if he was a young black man and Jeffrey Dahmer were Marcus Garvey.

"There are many differences between screwing a live and a dead person which one needs to be aware of," cautions the author of a web page called "Necrophilia for Boneheads." He does make one cogent point which was first brought to my attention years ago when reading about British serial killer Dennis Nilsen: It's not as if the carcass suffers or even has the merest idea of what's being done to it. "Firstly, a corpse will never tell you to get off of it if you're being a bit rough and it will never complain no matter what kinky sexual practices you use it for....If you want a great blowjob then lubricate your partner's mouth, lock it to your preferred width, insert and go for it."

"Westgate Necromantic" is a website curated by a female diddler of the deceased who claims that—forget it. I've had enough. These people are too sick.

ONCE YOU DIE, IT'S REALLY TIME TO LAY OFF THE SEX.

Let this stand as a living will—I want to be cremated and have my ashes fill the pepper shakers of Denny's restaurants nationwide. But if my final wishes aren't met and I'm spiked up on formaldehyde and stuffed in a pine box, don't try poking anything in my ass, because...well...I truly wouldn't be able to resist.

Skull-fuckers are a dime a dozen. To capture this scribe's interest, you have to dazzle me with something beyond corpse-cunnilingus. Been there, done that. In historical annals clogged with blandly interchangeable carcass-copulators, one nutty old man floats high above the putrefied heap. Anyone can just dig up a cadaver and make whoopee with it, yet it takes a man of rare pathological devotion to climb the craggy cliffs of Mount Weirdo and cop the coveted crown of King Necro.

That man is CARL TANZLER, a Carl Jung-looking German radiologist who formed what may be politely termed an unhealthy attachment with one of his patients. During his youth in Europe, he claimed to have been repeatedly visited by a female ancestor's ghost who showed him visions of his one true love, a raven-haired, dark-skinned filly. After relocating to Key West, Florida, land of Key Lime Pie and sunburned homosexuals, Tanzler's medical practice brought him in contact with a twenty-year-old tubercular Cuban hotsy-totsy named Maria Elena Milagro De Hoyos—thirty-three years his junior—whom he instantly pegged as his dream woman. His love was apparently unrequited, which didn't dissuade him from smothering the girl with trinkets, baubles, and endlessly lovey-dovey doodads.

Despite Tanzler's diligent attempts to cure his inamorata's TB, she succumbed to the illness within a year, at which point the party really started for the quacky doctor. (It's easier to pretend they love you when they're dead.) Tanzler paid for both the girl's funeral and an above-ground mausoleum which he visited almost daily for a year and a half. He even equipped the mausoleum with a telephone in order to conduct "conversations" with her during those unbearable moments when he couldn't be by her side.

One spring night in 1933, his separation anxiety grew too strong, and he plucked the dead girl's corpse from the mausoleum, toting it through the cemetery in a toy wagon en route to his small Key West home.

He strung the girl's bones together with piano wire, replaced her decomposed eyeballs with glass orbs, fitted her with a wig made entirely of her hair, crammed rags within her chest cavity, replaced her skin with wax-coated silk, dressed her in a bridal gown, and fitted her vagina with a paper tube, ostensibly for fucking. He adorned her in stockings and jewelry, repeatedly doused her with perfumes and preservatives, covered her face with a death mask, and placed her in his bed. Such shenanigans went on for seven years until a suspicious relative of De Hoyos made a surprise visit to Tanzler's home. Since Florida had no statute forbidding necrophilia, he was charged with grave-robbing, but the charges were dropped because the Statute of Limitations had expired.

Tanzler relocated to central Florida and continued to sell postcards depicting his beloved.
